PROGRAMAS

The Zappos Experience

This presentation highlights tools that have created a rich and unorthodox service culture at Zappos. This online business has revolutionized social media strategies, developed an environment which has earned it a consistent spot in the top ten of Fortune Magazine's best places to work, created zealous fans, and attracted Amazon.com as a purchaser for more than 1.2 billion dollars.

Joseph Michelli outlines the principles leaders and frontline workers can use to "zappify" enduring success. It's time to integrate -not balance- work and fun. It's time to benefit from the unique and effective employee and customer engagement techniques of Zappos!

The Starbucks Experience

By strategically focusing and executing on the details of the internal and external customer experience, Starbucks has become an employer and coffee provider of choice. In essence, Starbucks has become a name synonymous with coffee itself. While most people see Starbucks as a coffee company that serves people, its success is based on the inverse. It is a people company serving coffee.

Joseph Michelli shows frontline workers and business leaders how to "stage" and perform on their brand's promise. He analyzes the importance of identifying a desired emotional connection with the customer and helps participants see the important distinction between "good" and "bad" profit.

Prescription for Excellence

Imagine running a business that requires the innovation of Apple, the commitment to safety of NASA, and the customer service of The Ritz-Carlton. Further, imagine your work product holds life and death in the balance and you are responsible for discoveries that shape the future of medicine. That is the charter of UCLA Health System.

Borrowing from transformational leadership at UCLA, Joseph Michelli outlines lessons on how to catapult your business to preeminence at an unusually rapid pace, transform the satisfaction and engagement of your customers through a service-centric approach, achieve enviable profitability during economic downturns, and redesign, elevate and humanize your customer experience.
